

At least once a week I receive an unsolicited FAX from various marketers offering stock tips, time-share ownership, etc. Fortunately, they have all been single page. However, it takes time out of my day to call their toll-free number to get removed from their auto-dialer, and often times the number to call to be removed is not very apparent on the solicitation. Stiffer penalties need to be established as well as a requirement that the removal number be a certain pitch in size.
